

Things you should know about my country

Fun facts about Norway

Fun facts

- Its illegal to take selfies in norway
- We are not fat
- Sviland is very important for us
- We don't have a president
- Fact: if you take away the r in Norway it will became no way
- We eat to much kebab #nooffence
- We may have rare eyebrows

SOME FUN THINGS THAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT MY COUNTRY

1. Norway introduced salmon sushi to the Japanese
2. Norway has very strict rules on advertising cars as “green” – saying “cars can do less damage to the environment than the others”
3. Norway has the World’s biggest money fund, where it has been saving almost all the money it gets from the sale of oil and its worth almost a trillion dollars
4. The number of English speakers is higher in Sweden, Norway, Denmark and The Netherlands than it is in Canada
5. Dying is illegal in Longyearbyen, Norway because the town’s small graveyard stopped accepting bodies after discovering that frost prevented the bodies from getting rotten
6. The people of Oslo, Norway donate the Trafalgar Square Christmas tree in London every year to the people of London for their assistance during WWII
7. Voss water is just water from the water supply in Iveland, Norway
8. IKEA names sofas, coffee tables, bookshelves, media storage and doorknobs after places in Sweden; beds, wardrobes and hall furniture after places in Norway; carpets after places in Denmark and dining tables and chairs after places in Finland
9. In 2011, Norway went through a nationwide butter shortage, where sellers would often get caught selling butter and online auctions for one packet of butter reached as high as $77
10. Norway has won the most of Gold, Silver and Bronze medals of all countries in the Winter Olympics